Executive Director
Juliah Crelia

Juliah (King) Crelia is the new Executive Director and Forensic Interview for the Shelby County Children's Advocacy Center. In 2007, she obtained a double major Bachelor's of Arts from Stephen F. Austin State University in Criminal Justice and Sociology. She is currently enrolled in Stephen F. Austin's Master of Social Work Program. Juliah's work history includes employment as a correctional officer, probation officer, program director of the Family Crisis Center, and a Mental Health Intervention Specialist for the Burke Center. Juliah's most awarding achievement is recently becoming a new mom. Juliah enjoys reading, working on her farm, and spending time with her family. Juliah invites you to call or come by the Center to meet her!

"In order for us to make a difference, we must come together as a community to protect our children from abuse and neglect. Our children are our legacy and our leaders of the future. Too many lives have been affected and innocence taken away, from our children. We must stand together to stop the cycle of abuse, and help protect our children from this pain and suffering."

LEARN WHO WE ARE, PLEASE

Child abuse is one of the most devastating crimes that occur in our community. Children who are the victims of physical and sexual abuse are often scarred for life. In many instances, sexual predators claim multiple victims and are only stopped when they are caught and prosecuted. We are blessed to have The Shelby County Children's Advocacy Center here, in our community. When child abuse is discovered, the caring staff at the Center can bring the child victim together, with a trained forensic interviewer, to help the child tell what happened to them. The Center helps get the child victims connected with other community resources such as health care and counseling services. They also offer training to local churches, schools, and other groups within our community in child abuse prevention and detection. Our Center receives some funding from State and Federal funds; however, we must depend primarily on our community contributions to fund the operations of this vital organization. We are asking you to consider making a contribution to the Shelby County Children's Advocacy Center today. Thank you for your support!
